Half Don't usually think some comparisons of Chiropractic to medicine, however, it's important to note that Chiropractic is not a medical profession. It is a profession that specializes in the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of musculoskeletal disorders. It is a profession that is based on the science of human movement and the relationship between the spine and the nervous system. It is a profession that is based on the principle of "less is more". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the body has the ability to heal itself". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the mind, body, and spirit are interconnected". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the whole is greater than the sum of its parts". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the patient is the center of the universe". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the patient is the most important person in the room". It is a profession that is based on the principle of "the patient is the most important person in the room".
